Professional Development for Parents

This interactive, on-site workshop allows parents to become partners with their school administration. Bullying does not just affect the school, but rather, the entire community. It is important to address bullying on all levels of the student experience and to make sure parents feel heard as well as empowered to take proactive steps to create a supportive home environment.

Professional Development Agenda

- How to successfully work with their child's teacher and school administration
- Defining bullying, cyber bullying, social aggression and other acts of misconduct
- Common traits of students who are bullying, students who are being bullied, and bystanders
- Providing a same page mentality to proactively stop bullying
- What appropriate tools parents can use if they suspect their child is involved in a bullying situation
- Lessons and activities that promote a safe and supportive home environment
- And much more!
